

Disclaimer

1. Website content

The contents of this website are created with greatest care. We cannot take over guarantee that the contents provided are correct, complete and up-to-date. The utilization of the information provided on this website takes place at the user's own risk. Liability claims regarding damage caused by the use of or failure to use any information provided, be it material or non-material, including any kind of information which is incomplete or incorrect, will therefore be rejected, in so far as no deliberate or wantonly negligent behaviour on the part of us can be proven. All offers are not-binding and without obligation. Parts of the pages or the complete publication including all offers and information might be extended, changed or partly or completely deleted by us without separate announcement.

2. Referrals and links

This website is also connected to third party websites („external links“). The respective providers are responsible for these websites. We expressly declare that at the time of the first connection legal violations have not been noticeable. We do not have any influence on the present and future design as well as on the contents of the linked pages. We therefore explicitly distance ourselves from the contents found on all pages that have been linked and changed after the link was created. A constant supervision of the external links without any indication of violations of the law is not reasonable to us. Such external links will be immediately deleted when noticing any violations of the law.

3. Privacy policy

Information about visiting users having access to our website may be saved. This data (date, time, considered site) does not belong to the individual-related data but is made anonymous. It is exclusively analysed for statistical reason. A transfer to a third party for commercial or uncommercial reasons does not take place. We state explicitly that the transfer of data in the internet (e.g. by communicating via e-mail) may have security vulnerability and cannot be completely protected from being accessed by third parties. The surrender of the data by the user is made explicitly on a voluntary basis.

The disposal of contact details taken from ‚about us‘ for commercial advertisements is expressly not allowed unless we had previously given our consent or unless there is already a business connection. We are strictly against any kind of commercial use and transfer of your data.

4. Copyright and ancillary copyright

The contents published on this website are subjected to the German copyright and ancillary copyright. Any utilization not permitted by German law governing copyrights and ancillary copyrights shall require our prior written consent. This applies especially for editing, duplication, storage, translation, processing or rendition of data base contents or other electronical media and systems. Contents and rights belonging to third parties are identified as such. The unauthorised forwarding or duplication of entire pages or individual contents is not permitted and is punishable by law. Only the production of downloads and copies for private and commercial use is allowed. Presentation of this website in other frames is only permissible with prior written permission.

5. Specific terms of use

Should any special terms and conditions for individual use of this website diverge from the aforementioned points, this will be explicitly stipulated. In this event the specific terms of use shall be valid in that individual case.